

WOMEN HALTING WAR ON NORTH KOREA:

THE PROMISE FOR ALL OF 1325 AND FEMINIST FOREIGN POLICY

Tuesday, March 13, 2018 10:30-12:00 PM EST

As the world cheered on the two Koreas as they carried a One Korea flag into the Winter Olympics, the Trump administration drew up plans to inflict a "bloody nose" strike on North Korea that could potentially impact 25 million people. President Trump is threatening a war against North Korea with "numbers that nobody has ever contemplated" if the U.S.'s "Maximum Pressure" campaign of increased sanctions targeting civilians fails to force North Korea to de-nuclearize.

This dangerous moment calls for an intervention by women's peace movements to halt the threat of a looming nuclear war. Come learn how women from South Korea, Japan, Canada, and the United States are using the Women, Peace and Security agenda and other strategies to prevent a new Korean War.

- Christine Ahn Women Cross DMZ, USA
- Kozue Akibayashi Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, Doshisha University, Japan
- Janis Alton Canadian Voice of Women for Peace, Canada
- Liz Bernstein Nobel Women's Initiative, Canada
- Eun-ah Jung Korean Women's Assn. United, South Korea
- Young-soon Kim Korean Women's Assn. United, South Korea
- Honorable Marilou McPhedran Senator, Canada
- Yehjung Yi Korean Sharing Movement, South Korea

U.N. CHURCH CENTER

777 UNITED NATIONS PLAZA

2ND FLOOR

NEW YORK, NY

Co-sponsored by: Canadian Voice of Women for Peace, Nobel Women's Initiative, United Methodist Women, Women Cross DMZ, and Women's International League for Peace and Freedom

View Live on www.facebook.com/WomenCrossDMZ