

CHRISTINE AHN

ENDING AMERICA'S LONGEST WAR: PROSPECTS FOR PEACE WITH NORTH KOREA

Christine Ahn is the Founder and Executive Director of Women Cross DMZ, a global movement of women mobilizing to end the Korean War and ensure women's leadership in peace building. In 2015, she led 30 international women peacemakers across the De-Militarized Zone (DMZ) from North Korea to South Korea. They walked with 10,000 Korean women on both sides of the DMZ and held women's peace symposia in Pyongyang and Seoul where they discussed how to end the war. She has addressed the United Nations, the US Congress, Canadian Parliament and ROK National Human Rights Commission. Her op-eds have appeared in The New York Times, The Washington Post, San Francisco Chronicle, Fortune Magazine, The Hill, and South China Morning Post. She is a regular contributor on MSNBC AM Joy, Democracy Now!, CNN and BBC and has appeared on the Samantha Bee Show, Anderson Cooper 360, and the Today show.

Christine is also the co-founder of the Korea Policy Institute and the Korea Peace Network, and has been a policy analyst with prominent organizations such as the Global Fund for Women, Oakland Institute, Institute for Food and Development Policy, and Nautilus Institute for Security and Sustainable Development.

She promises a full "behind the scenes" report on her recent travels including: her trip to Vietnam for the Trump-Kim summit; the Washington, DC launch of the Korea Peace Now! Women Mobilizing to End the Korean War global campaign with South Korean women parliamentarians; and the human chain action of half a million South Koreans along the DMZ.
